

why be so blatantly partisan without offering multiple choices for viewing--that is, viewpoints from two or more political angles? If you were pay-for-view I would say, who cares? Those who pay deserve to see what they want; but this manipulative ploy appears to be an attempt to prey upon the most gullible voters who are easily swayed by even the most superficial propaganda. Such brazen partisan television surely further shoots down the myth of a "liberal media." Yeah, right. Michael Moore will be on pay-for-view with "Fahrenheit 9/11." why not this film too? why, because you know that people aren't as likely to pay for your film; hence, you wish to manufacture consent for Bush. Democracies aren't always pretty, yes, are even messy. But this is tyranny of the airwave through propaganda. Richard Holmes
